Privacy in the New Public Sphere (3)

15th January 2021

This event is hosted by the AHRC-funded project Norms for the New Public Sphere, which brings together academic philosophers with media scholars, activists and professionals in order to investigate the opportunities and challenges that new social media pose for the public sphere.

There's one item (linked below - comments encouraged) that should be read in advance. And both speakers will make short presentations on the day to provoke discussion. We encourage everyone to contribute to the discussions as much as they'd like and are able, but we know that most of us are working in non-ideal conditions right now so please feel free to drop in and out, and turn your mics and cameras off as you wish We also encourage you to draw any links with our previous discussions (25 Sept & 4th Dec) on work by Beate Rössler, Eric Barendt, Francesca Sobande and Helen Frowe.

Programme

9.30 - 9.45	Introductions
9.45 - 9.55	Brief remarks by Kim Foale
9.55 - 10.40	Open discussion: Everything is connected, but should it be?
10.40 - 10.50	Break
10.50 - 11.00	Brief remarks by Alice Thwaite
11.00 - 11.45	Open discussion: Translating the value of privacy ethics into the language of business ethics
11.45 - 12.00	Closing remarks